THE WORKMAN'S CORNER

This column will be devoted to the interests of the working man as outlined by our Waukegan correspondent.

Something for Nothing.

When a crowd gathers around a fakir's stand on some public corner, gullible as so many children, taking in the glib talk on some specific he has for sale, or more likely some vanishing valuable, be it a ten dollar note in place of some pinchbeck jewelry that the purchaser really gets for his good money, then it is that one thinks it necessary to iterate and reiterate a timely warning to the masses. Why, apparently, intelligent human nature can be so plausibly imposed upon is past understanding, unless it is upon the individual idea of getting something for nothing. It was this fakirish idea of the leaders of the demo-pop party of '96, when the misleading fallacy of "16 to 1" was duly promoted to gather in so many votes. While that "heaven-born" issue is not at this time the paramount idea, no one will forget that the Chicago platform of that occasion was reendorsed at Kansas City, and therefore, a part of the platform as well as imperialism and free trade.

From the time, (1884) when this party took up for its presidential candidate a man who was a failure as a general of the union armies and placed him upon its party platform, declaring the existing war of the rebellion to be a failure, until the present time, it has been as consistent and as honest as the glib fakir, but unlike the fakir they have won only once, in full, during forty years.
Grover Cleveland, as the head of that party, for the first time since the war, succeeded to the presidency in '84, but was powerless over congress. He succeeded again in '92, together with both houses of congress "on his hands."

In the first instance of democratic success the all absorbing plea made by them on that occasion was "count the cash." Very many excellent men then thought that after so many years of power and after handling so much money occasioned by the war, that the grand old party had become corrupt.
This cry, together with a fatal blunder by an eminent speaker in New York, lost the state and sealed the fate of Blaine, and for the first time in many years the democratic party came into power.

With the exception of turning out many republican officials and grievously hampering the settlers in the new states, the Dakotas and Washington, as also the vigorous and ruthless exercise of the veto power in the case of pensioners, little else was accomplished, unless we include the "count of the cash" which was found correct to a penny. So far as the issues of that campaign were concerned it was harmless with the above exceptions.

The four succeeding years of Harrison's rule were years of unprecedented prosperity which statistics of the time will verify.
Labor was in demand at big wages. The country was prosperous as it had never been before. The great war debt was being paid until it ceased to be alarming. The currency was so good that many thought it best to let it alone, but the opposition, never happy unless finding fault, continued to tinker at it until they succeeded in fastening a ruinous law upon the nation which made it compulsory to purchase 4,500,000 ounces of silver per month—a bonanza to the mine owners. Right here is one of those anomalous actions hard to be accounted for from any scientific or statesman's standpoint. Seven thousand tons of silver is said to have accumulated in the treasury vaults. Well, the government has the silver and the mine owners got gold certificates for it.

Grover Cleveland did not think it a good financial investment and quickly had the law repealed, but none the less his administration cost the country $392,000,000.
But I am anticipating. The issue before the people in '92 was protection to American industries as exemplified by the Mc-Kinley tariff act versus free trade. Evidently the people wanted a change, for the election showed a landslide to the astonishment of both parties. Loyal republicans are yet wondering how it happened. Today the democrats are hoping for similar results. Will they get it? The reverse is more likely. Why?

Because four years of hard times, soup houses, Coxey's army, idleness and distress generally is not so soon forgotten when the issue is again so similar. The administration of President McKinley has reversed these and disastrous conditions. Four years ago W. J. Bryan tried to make the people believe that it was a want of money that brought about the trouble of Cleveland's administration, and he offered you free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 as the great panacea. The medicine didn't take then. Will it do in these days of prosperity, and what for?
Everybody now knows that the hard times was not caused by the want of money, but rather the means of obtaining it. There is an abundance of money and the rate for the use of it never so cheap. There is no change demanded at this time, and imperialism isn't disturbing the family near as much as when the flour barrel was empty. The people do not believe that the law or the present administration will greatly change it continued four years longer, but they do believe that William J.
Bryan's methods, untried as they are,
might precipitate a policy for the country as ruinous, as distressful as that of his predecessor, Grover Cleveland. God forbid.

PARIS EXPOSITION LETTER

An Interesting and Instructive Letter
From Our Regular Correspondent.

PARIS, August 8, 1900.

Interest in the attempt made today on the life of the Shah of Persia will no doubt have weakened by the time these notes reach America, but as all Paris is talking of it a word or two about it, if they throw any new light on the subject, will not be amiss. The one question generally asked is why the Shah chosen and not President Loubet; for the former must be, from the anarchist point of view, comparatively uninteresting, whereas the assassination of President Loubet would horrify the whole civilized world as much as or even more than that of King Humbert. Both Shah and president were equally accessible, so there was no special difficulty about approaching President Loubet. Possibly the assassin or his instigators thought one as suitable as the other for their purpose; namely, fending off a principle and making the illustration as striking to the imagination as possible. The president's immunity hitherto is all the more remarkable as Paris has for two or three years past been full of Italian workmen, indeed workmen of every country, among whom anarchists must be abundant. It seems certain that these attacks are not isolated occurrences but are the result of organization. I have heard it suggested that the society really responsible for all these attempts is the Italian and Sicilian secret society called the Mafia. Nothing is more likely, for though most potent in Italy, where it has members in every class and rank, its ramifications extend over all Europe and in America.

As was only natural and proper the assassination of King Humbert paralyzed Paris, so to speak, for a few days after it occurred. All public functions of a social kind were postponed, and even those of a serious character were more or less interfered with. Perhaps that most affected, the Press Congress, for which a long and elaborate, and indeed most interesting program had been arranged. For one thing all the Italian journalists were recalled to Italy at a moment's notice, and for another President Loubet's reception at the Elysee fell through. Still the congress was held, and a fair number of journalists attended.
The American representation was neither very large nor very representative, still it included some well-known names. The two American secretaries were Mr. Charles Boynton, manager of the Associated Press
at Paris, and Captain A. H. Mattox, press representative of the United States commission to the exposition, and among the delegates from America or European editors of American papers were Mr. H. de Young of San Francisco, Mr. C. F. L.
Gauss of Chicago, Mr. Louis Heller of Philadelphia, Mr. W. H. Sanger of Boston, and Mr. H. R. Chamberlain who represents the New York Sun in London. The president of the congress was Mr. W.
Singer, editor of a leading Vienna paper,
the Neues Wiener Tagblatt, with two French, one German and one Spanish journalist as vice-presidents. Whether the congress will have any practical results it is not easy to forecast. One proposal was for the establishment of an international school of journalism in Paris, another for the establishment of an hospital for journalists in the game city, while a third was for the creation of a bureau of information for Paris journalists. Of all three there is only one, the last, that would,
if any, meet with sufficient general support to enable it to pay its way. There is a great need of some such bureau, well supplied with literary and journalistic convenience, and especially books of reference.
It is hoped, by the way, to hold the next press congress during the exposition at Buffalo.

In pursuance of the question raised in one of my previous letters, namely as to the success or failure of the exposition, it is quite clear that the intrinsic success of the show is one thing and the extrinsic success another. Intrinsically, it may be said that very few people who speculated on making money within the show will do so, while almost all the amusements will lose heavily and several of them go into bankruptcy.
But neither France nor Paris, nor indeed any exhibitor who has his name and fame to maintain, will lose. There may be reaction, but for the past three years industry, not only in France but in other countries,
has been stimulated and labor amply rewarded, while the city of Paris will have reaped, indeed is reaping, a splendid harvest. The government, by its emission of 50,000,000 tickets, showed that it thought that number of people would visit the exposition. It is now clear that this was too high an estimate unless there happens to be a wonderful rush, as is just possible towards the end. But suppose 20,000,000 strangers visit Paris, and suppose each visitor spends $20, no extravagant calculation, the result will be a total of $400,000,000 most of which will stay in Paris. Besides, there are the takings of the railways and the steamships; so that from this point of view the exposition must do very well.
Again, look at what will be left to France and Paris when the exposition is over.
The new bridge over the Seine, Pont Alexander III, is by itself a noble heritage and by far the most artistic and graceful public edifice, if it may be so called, in the exposition. And then there are the palaces of fine arts and the magnificent boulevard from the Champs Elysees right down to the Invalides. But there are several other permanent features, additions to the comfort or to the beauty of Paris—and if they with what I have specified, are taken into account, one must admit the exposition of 1900 to be something more than a success.
It is a great and splendid national legacy
as well.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

B. C. Richardson, a wealthy property owner at Alliance, Neb., was shot by a musketeer named Oline, with probably fatal results. Richardson put Oline out of a saloon in a building owned by the wounded man and this caused the shooting.

A message received from the Muskoka region of Canada states that W. Sprague Kerr, a prominent live stock dealer of East Buffalo, N. Y., and for many years secretary of the East Buffalo Live Stock Exchange, has been drowned in Squit lake.

The body of one of the Union Pacific train robbers killed at Goodland, Kan., and buried at the county's expense, has been exhumed and identified as that of James Jones, wanted for crimes committed near Springfield, Mo., and in Texas, and for whose capture a reward of $2,300 had been offered.

An important innovation relative to the operating employees of the Union Pacific Railroad Company will be inaugurated Sept. 1. It will be the introduction of the system of discipline by record, and after its operation begins the suspension of employees from duty with consequent loss of time will be discontinued.

At Ague Negro, N. M., the inhabitants were awakened by a rumbling noise like that of an earthquake. Subsequent investigation revealed that several hundred acres of prairie had sunk about ten feet and the cavity had filled with water, although there had been no rainfall. In a few days the water had seeped through the ground and a subterranean river was discovered 500 feet below the surface.

James Clark and another prisoner named Casey made a desperate attempt to break jail at Minot, N. D. They sawed out of their cage and assaulted Jailer Ernest Tompkins, who lay asleep, with a slingshot. Tompkins had the keys under his pillow. He screamed and Sheriff Carroll ran to his rescue. He could not get in, but at the point of a revolver forced the prisoners back to their cells. Tompkins is in a critical condition. Both men await trial for horse stealing.

A negro robbed a woman in a crowded street in Chicago and was pursued by a mob. Finding capture he shot right and left and goaded the pursuers to fury. The police found great difficulty in restraining the mob from lynching him.

In Kansas City Charles Dunbar and Mrs. Nora Bradley of New Albany, Ind., attempted suicide at a boarding house by taking morphine. Dunbar and Mrs. Bradley eloped six weeks ago and have been living there as man and wife since.

Near St. Thomas a severe hail storm destroyed 40,000 acres of the finest grain grown in North Dakota this year, green truck and vegetable being destroyed. The storm was two miles wide and forty-four miles long, and many of the hail stones were from three to four inches in diameter. The loss will be over 200,000 bushels.

H. S. Colby, of Post Junction, Iowa, has complained to the officers at Sallina, Kan., that he was robbed of $3,440 at Sallina. He was on his way to Plainsville to invest the money and changed cars there. After he got on the second train five men jumped against him, and then left the train. Some distance west Colby discovered his loss.

Charles F. Dale, defendant in a suit recently filed in court at Bushville, Ind., in which he is charged with the murder of four members of the Frazee family, was arrested by City Marshal Jones by order of Chief of Police Dietrich of Cincinnati. The charge against Dale is the mistreatment of two little girls—Ada Bergman and Grace Dewenter. He asserts his innocence.

In the case of the Chesapeake and Ohio Fuel Company, charged by the Government with being a trust in violation of the United States statutes, Judge Thompson of Cincinnati decided in favor of the Government, finding that the company is conducting its business in violation of the anti-trust statutes. The fuel company includes some fourteen coal companies, mostly in West Virginia.

Arthur Taylor and George Featherstone, each about 9 years of age, are under arrest at Victor, Colo., charged with causing the wreck of the Midland Terminal passenger train half a mile east of Independence, and trying to wreck the Florence and Cripple Creek train from Bull Hill in the yards at Independence. They were detected and captured while making the second attempt at train-wrecking.

Fred Schlake, a farmer living near Pickersell, Neb., was found dead in the road near his home. He had been to Beatrice and he found a horse home without a driver. It was thought at first he had fallen from the wagon and broken his neck, but examination revealed two bullet holes in the back of his head. Why he should have been murdered is not known, as $300 in money on his person had not been taken.

Rivalry between the Great Lakes Towing Company and the Mayhew tug resulted in disaster at Ashabula, Ohio. The steamer Waxatum signaled for a tow and the William D. of the Great Lakes Company and the Alpha of the Mayhew Line started to her. In rounding up to the vessel the Alpha crowded the William D., which was struck by the Waxatum's bow. She overturned, filled and sank. Lineman Harry Stearns was drowned, but the others on board escaped.

S. J. Osborn, Speaker of the last Kansas House of Representatives, has returned from England, where he was sent to investigate the inheritance of Rev. T. H. James of Salina, Kan. Judge Osborn believes that Mr. James has been made the dupe of English attorneys, who wanted to get a fee from him. "I could find no trace of any fortune for the James family," Judge Osborn said. "I found the place in Liverpool where he boarded and from the description of his condition by the doctor who kept him in England, I believe that he was drugged and what money he had was taken from him."

ENVOYS ARE FREED.

ALLIED ARMY ENTERS PEKIN WITHOUT A FIGHT.

American Troops Under General Chaffee in the Lead—News of the Liberation of the Belegged Ministers and Their Attendants.

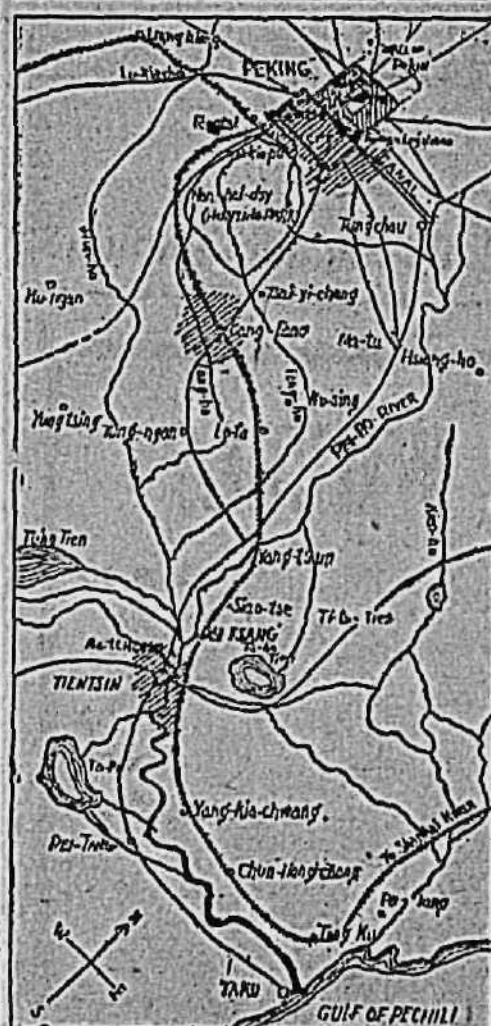

Out of the gloom of the recent acute crisis came the cheering information from many sources Friday, unofficial, but so circumstantial and positive as to be generally credited in official quarters, that the allied armies had reached Pekin and that the legationaries had been relieved. This information came from press dispatches from London, Shanghai and Berlin, and they were eagerly scanned by the officials in Washington. The dispatch from Berlin conveying the communication from the German consul at Shanghai that the allies had entered Pekin and liberated all the foreigners was credited as official circles. The announcement was joyfully received in Washington. President McKinley was shown the dispatches from abroad, and the conviction was generally expressed that the crisis in China is now over.

Information from Shanghai via Berlin states that Pekin was entered by the allied forces on Aug. 15 without opposition, and that American troops under Gen. Chaffee were the first to enter the city. The Chinese capital, the Japanese, British and Russians followed in the order named. The allies began operations on the walls of Pekin in the morning. A flag of truce was hoisted on the wall and in the afternoon the Americans, under their general, marched into the city.

The collapse of Chinese resistance is explained in dispatches from Shanghai as being due to the failure of the Chinese to flood the country below Tung Chow. The earthworks connected with the dam at the Pei-Ho were unfinished, and the canal at Tung Chow was full of water, facilitating boat transports when the allies arrived there. Signals between the allies and the legationaries holding part of the wall at Pekin were exchanged during the morning of Aug. 15. It was reported that Yuan-Shih-Kai's troops had gone to Shen-Si to protect the empress, who, according to reports, with Tan, the imperial household and the bulk of the army and boxes, left Pekin Aug. 7 for Hsiao-Pu.

A dispatch received from the German consul at Shanghai was given out by the Berlin foreign office. It stated that the allies entered Pekin without fighting, the legationaries were relieved and the foreigners liberated.

With the legationaries relieved, the gravest crisis is removed. But there remains many momentous questions to be determined.

TAKU TO PEKIN.

It appears to be accepted that some of the powers will keep their military forces in China, at least until all questions growing out of the crisis are settled. This is expected to involve questions, not only of money indemnity, but of territorial extension on the part of some of the European parties to the controversy. It is not believed that the United States will be a party to any such territorial controversy.

The declaration of Secretary Hay, made at the beginning of the trouble, forecasted the purpose of this Government to seek to preserve Chinese territorial and administrative entity.

There have been many changes in the situation since that declaration was made, and yet it seems to clearly indicate that if territorial extension is one of the motives to the crisis, the United States will not be a party to it. Chinese officials are apprehensive that a long period of diplomatic exchange may follow the crisis, covering six months or a year, during which Germany, France and some of the other powers will keep armies on Chinese soil to re-enforce extreme demands of money and territorial indemnity. With China's present impotent condition there appears to be no issue out of this long struggle but her eventually yielding to the various demands.

CHINA SUES FOR PEACE.

LI-HUNG-CHANG Asks America to Name a Commissioner.

The Chinese Government, through Li Hung Chang, has made application to the United States for the appointment of a Minister Conger or some other American official with authority to open negotiations for the establishment of peace and for fixing definite terms for the settlement of the present trouble. The application came to the Chinese minister in Washington Monday and was taken by him to the State Department.

The application for the appointment of a peace commissioner expresses willingness to conduct the negotiations at a point desired by the powers. A similar application has been made by Earl Li, all of the powers interested. His suggestion of Minister Conger as the American commissioner is based on the idea that as Mr. Conger has been recent leader in now the opportunity to proceed to the point where negotiations will be held and conduct them. The application does not suggest any particular terms, nor does it ask for the withdrawal of troops. It requests that the negotiations shall be for the purpose of bringing about a cessation of hostilities.

CYCLONE IN WISCONSIN.

Fifty Buildings Demolished and Three Times as Many Badly Damaged at Sheboygan.

A cyclone struck Sheboygan Monday noon. Fifty buildings were demolished and 150 partially wrecked. The property loss is from $300,000 to $400,000. Singularly, not a life was lost, and no person was seriously injured. The storm came almost without warning, accompanied by a cloudburst. It cut a swath through the city from the northeast to southwest, about two blocks wide and two miles long.

The steeple of the South Side Lutheran church was blown off and demolished two neighboring houses. The roof and fourth floor of the warehouse of the Crocker Chair company's plant was torn away, and the bricks thrown with such great force against the neighboring buildings of the plant that they went through the side of the structure of the roof of a large malthouse at the K. Schreier Brewing company's plant, which was torn off and carried over the tops of the neighboring buildings.

The building of the Oppenberg & Son-nemann Boiler Manufacturing company was completely demolished, causing a loss of $3,000. The street car barns were blown down and the cars and debris piled in a big heap. The elegant $25,000 schoolhouse in the Fourth ward was about ruined. The tent of the Gentry dog show was torn to shreds at a loss of $1,000.

Many of the houses were torn to shreds and the remnants scattered in the path of the storm. The 5-year-old child of Thos. Atkins had a narrow escape. The house was torn to splinters, and the debris carried away. The child was buried under a pile of wreckage. Rescue work for the little fellow began at once, and he was gotten out with a few bruises, he having been shielded by a number of timbers which fell in front of him.

Bids for Hauling Supplies.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received for hauling supplies, butter and coal, and from the Antioch Creamery Association—factory, hauling to commence Sept. 1, 1900. For further information and conditions apply to secretary. Bids to close August 25, 1900, at 1 o'clock p. m. The association reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

By order of the Board of Directors.

General Palmer for McKinley.

Gen. John M. Palmer, former United States senator and leader of the gold democratic forces in 1896, has broken silence and come out squarely for the republican ticket. He thinks the cry of imperialism one with which to frighten the unthinking. He believes in commercial expansion. He declares Bryan is leading the democratic party to populism and disaster.

"Yes, I shall vote for Major McKinley," he said. "That is, of course, if the gold democrats should refuse to put out a ticket, and this is impossible."

"Do you predict Bryan's defeat?"

"Assuredly. The cry of imperialism will change few votes. It's a false alarm, and the thinking people know it. This country is not, nor are Mr. McKinley and his partisan friends, believers in imperialism. If there has been expansion, circumstances have warranted it. Cuba will be under self-government in a little while, and the Filipinos will be ruled as best the administration can. Pray, what would Mr. Bryan have had this country do with the islands? We got them, and we will hold them as they stand until some better scheme presents itself for controlling them. I think that the American government would be better off without the territory, but the administration has met all the demands that have arisen there, manfully and honestly."

"Mr. McKinley is a safe man, I think. I differ from him on many material questions affecting the real interests of the whole people, but as between him and Bryan there is, to my way of thinking, but one course. If Mr. Bryan were president and controlled the legislative branches, this country would be thrown in a panic that would take months to check and years to heal."

Rain and Wind Storm.

A terrific rain and wind storm passed over southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois Sunday afternoon, doing considerable damage to the corn crop and badly damaging growing fruit, such as apples, pears and the like, which were shaken to the ground. At Loon Lake, south of this city, a miniature cyclone passed over a small expanse of country, but no great damage was done as far as reported. Some guests at Fred Rhymers place were out with a horse and buggy and were caught in the storm, their buggy upset and badly demolished, while the occupants were more or less injured, none seriously however. The horse broke away from the overturned rig and to add to the inconvenience of the situation the ladies were forced to walk home through the drenching rain and mud. In Kenosha a number of buildings were struck by lightning and in one building six persons were stunned by the electric discharge, but as far as reported no one was seriously injured. Corn in various parts of Kenosha county was badly cut by hail and considerable damage has resulted.

Annual address by Rev. J. W. Corey, of Kenosha.

Music by the band.

Other speakers will be called out.

Exercises will close with Auld Lang Syne by the band. It is especially requested there be no walking about or talking during the exercises in the pavilion as it creates so much disturbance the speaking cannot be heard.

Nolle's cornet band will give a free concert in the pavilion in the evening from 7:30 to 8:30 embracing the following numbers:

Milwaukee Carnival March—Schetter.

Cornet solo (J. C. Youk)—Selected.

Overature, Home Circle—Schleppgegel.

Romance for trombone—Bennels.

Cake Walk, Shine on Johnson—Norwatski.

Doors open at seven. All seats free.

The Ring-Hal.

The ring-hal does not disdain an insect diet. Beetles, grasshoppers, locusts and termites are all readily devoured, as well as ticks and bots picked from the hides of cattle. I have sometimes amused myself by watching the bold yet cautious and gentle manner in which one of these ravens will approach a reclining ox, and, after a preliminary course of soothing caresses, accompanied by a soft "cawing" note, insert his head into the ear and dexterously extract the ticks. These birds always seem to have a good understanding with the older and more experienced oxen, who will, at a hint from one of them, lie down and place themselves in the most favorable position for the extraction of their parasites—"The Birds of South Africa," by A. C. Stark.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, August 20, 1900.

President McKinley is much gratified with the Chinese situation, as it now stands, not only because Minister Conger, the other Americans and the foreigners in Pekin are safely in the hands of their friends, but because the results, as far as they have gone, are a complete vindication of his policy toward the government of China—a policy which differs radically from that pursued by the European governments. How complete unprejudiced persons regard that vindication may be judged by the following editorial utterance of the independent Washington Post: "Our diplomatic efforts to avert an appalling tragedy unparalleled in the world's history have been conducted with tactful skill, patient forbearance, and lofty methods that have challenged the admiration of Christendom. Dealing directly and frankly with the Chinese authorities, through Minister Wu and our consuls in the Orient, keeping cool and clear heads under most trying circumstances; unmoved by the outcries of the hysterical press, President McKinley and Secretary Hay have made a record in this unhappy affair of which the nation may well be proud. The wisdom of each succeeding step taken by the state department has been speedily established. All Europe has had its first news from Washington, from time to time, of developments in the important diplomatic negotiations preliminary to the rescue."

Senator Thurston, who is in Washington, said: "I am filled with admiration, as every American must be, with the attitude of the administration in the handling of this momentous question. It has been splendid. We have literally set the pace for the powers. The president's foreign policy has been admirable. True to our original purpose, we have pushed on to Pekin and rescued our minister and have been perfectly fair to the Chinese without a thought of entering into a war or conquest or of revenue." Of our probable future policy in China, Senator Thurston said: "I think this government should co-operate as fully as possible with the powers in restoring order in the Chinese empire and in preventing its dismemberment. I am opposed to the dismemberment of the empire though it is perhaps a little premature to consider such a proposition at this time. I do not know that such a thing is contemplated. But the restoration of law and order will be the first step. My heart goes out to General Chaffee and his splendid little force of American soldiers. They are true heroes, as are those who so nobly and bravely stood off the attacks of the murderous Chinese on the legations. The pulse of every true American ought to beat the faster at the thought of American pluck and bravery so admirably exhibited. It is typical of the sturdy strength of American manhood."

Senator Proctor made a special trip to Washington to personally congratulate President McKinley on the success of his Chinese policy. The senator has no doubts about the political outlook. He thinks that what some take for apathy is merely the calm confidence of the country that the republicans are to be kept in power and to be continued as they are.

Hon. T. J. Henderson, of Illinois, who made many Washington friends during his long service in the house, is paying a visit to the national capital. He says that Illinois is not a doubtful state, but that its electoral votes are as certain to be cast for McKinley and Roosevelt as anything which has not yet occurred can be.

The old Cleveland element of the democratic party is not supporting Bryan, notwithstanding claims to the contrary. Mr. Franklin B. Simmons, of New York, who calls himself "a Grover Cleveland democrat, first, last and all the time" was in Washington a day or two ago, and when asked what he thought of the outcome of the present campaign would be said: "Of course Bryan will be defeated this fall and McKinley will be elected."

Those enterprising newspaper men who guessed that President McKinley had written his letter of acceptance and even went so far as to give its length were away off. The letter has not yet been written and will not be until after the president gets back to Canton from the G. A. R. encampment at Chicago.

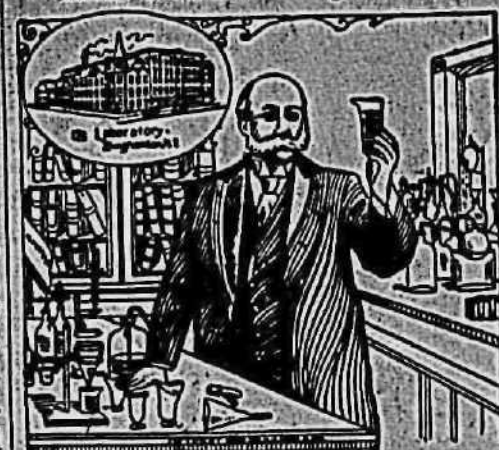

The president devoted considerable personal attention to the entertainment of the 1837 Cuban school teachers who were brought to Washington to spend a couple of days before returning to their homes after completing a special summer course at Harvard university. As a special honor to them he held an afternoon reception for them in the white house, at which each one of them was personally presented to him. His orders for the reception were that the floral and other decorations should be on the same scale as for the regular official receptions of the winter season. Mrs. McKinley and Mrs. Gage assisted the president to receive the Cubans, who appeared to be delighted with the attention they received.

"There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen 'leaks out' and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worst form of kidney trouble."

"I want some more chicken," said Bobbie at the dinner table. "I think you have had as much as is good for you, dear," said Bobbie's mother. "I want more," said Bobbie. "You can't have more now, but here is a wishbone that you and mamma can pull. That will be fun. You pull one side and I'll pull the other, and whoever gets the longer end will have the wish come true. Why, Bobbie, you've got it. What was your wish?" "I wished for more chicken," said Bobbie, promptly. He got it this time.

SHOE LEADERS

An exchange prints the following birth notice: "Born to the wife of Pat Smith, a boy. The youngster favors his old dad in several ways. He's baldheaded, has a red nose, takes to a bottle like a bumble bee to a lump of sugar, makes a great deal of noise for the money he spends and won't work."

You will never find any other pills so prompt and so pleasant as DeWitt's Little Early Risers. W. T. Hill.

"That fellow Bumbleton is a deep one." "What has he been doing?" "Why, he got the new boarder into a brisk controversy with the landlady over the reasons for woman's mental inferiority, and under cover of it he sneaked a second piece of huckleberry pie."

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her; and she writes, this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of its power to cure all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1. Guaranteed. Trial bottle free at all drug stores.

"I told Miss Oldgirl the other evening, for a joke, that every time she laughed I wanted to kiss her." "Did she think you meant it?" "Well, whenever I meet her now she begins to laugh for all she's worth."

Millions will be spent in politics this year. We can't keep the campaign going without money any more than we can keep the body vigorous without food. Dyspepsia used to starve themselves. Now Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and allows you to eat all the good food you want. It radically cures stomach troubles. W. T. Hill.

Willie—"Say, did you propose to my sister last night?"

Featherstone—"Eh—Ah. Why, Willie?"

Willie—"Cause everybody in the house has been geying the life out of her."

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. It is a godsend to weak, sickly, run-down people. Cure guaranteed. Only 50c. Sold by all druggists.

Angry Wife—"It seems to me we've been married a century. I can't even remember when or where we first met." Husband (emphatically)—"I can. It was at a dinner party where there were thirteen at the table."

Dr. Phillips Brooks.

Only one noted Protestant divine has been a bachelor. He was Phillips Brooks, who seemingly possessed every quality desirable in a model husband. The cause of his remaining single seems never to have been understood, even by those who were closest to him. In his student days and in his career as a clergyman he had many friendships with women, while his passionate fondness for children was remarked often.

GOOSE FOLLOWS A DOG.

A tame goose of the Canadian species, at Vancouver, in British Columbia, was being worried by several Indian dogs, when a large dog interfered and saved its life. From that time the goose cherished a warm attachment to the dog, who returned it. They slept in the kennel and wherever the dog went the goose followed and they were rarely, if ever, more than a few feet apart.

Pimples

Are more than a disfigurement of the skin; they are a handicap to a young man alike in love and business. The pimply face looks dissipated and both merchant and maiden look askance at the unfortunate fellow whose face is his misfortune. An almost certain cure for pimples and similar disfiguring eruptions is found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It purifies the blood of the corrupting cause of ordinary eruptive diseases, cleanses the skin and builds up the body with sound wholesome flesh. "Discovery" contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

"I am well pleased with your medicine," writes John A. Calloway, Esq., of No. 218 5th St., Columbus, Ga. "In 1894 I was working at night and I broke out in pimples all over, and when these left the skin was covered with a thick crust of scales. I took six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I do believe that I have a good appetite, but before I commenced treatment I had no appetite at all. My eyes were sunken and my face was pale. I had pimples and brown spots on my face. Now these are all gone. I have used many kinds of medicines, but received no benefit. Last year I weighed one hundred and thirty-four pounds, and now I weigh one hundred and forty-five. Please accept my thanks. I am so glad I found the right kind of medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for book in paper covers, or 3 stamps for cloth, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

FAMOUS ARCHAEOLOGIST

Is Professor Alfred Emerson of Berkeley Museum.

Professor Alfred Emerson, the most celebrated archaeologist of American birth, who was summoned from Paris by Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, in frequent consultation with her regarding the excavations which are to be undertaken in Greece to enrich the museum of classical art and archaeology, which Mrs. Hearst proposes to establish in Berkeley. During the few weeks which Prof. Emerson will spend in California the classical scholars of the two universities are making the most of the privilege of discussing things Greek with him. Dr. Emerson is an archaeologist by deliberate choice. He began his preparation for work at an early age, spending two years in Athens while still in his teens that he might learn modern Greek. As a result he speaks the language with a fluency equalled by few, if any, other American scholars. Professor Emerson might be called a precursor of the American school of classical studies in Athens, which dates only from 1881. He studied classical philology in Munich under the famous Latin critic Karl Halm, and Von Christ, the leading contemporary authority on ancient meter. He also studied archaeology under the late Professor Brunn, at that time the foremost German archaeologist. He took his Ph. D. at the university of Munich in 1881. The professor has taught in several of the leading universities of America, including the Johns Hopkins university and Cornell university. While at Cornell he organized a museum of classical archaeology which ranks as the largest and richest university museum of this kind in the United States. He has excavated a Greek temple at Croton, Italy, lodging and boarding for months in a lonely lighthouse; explored the North African country known to the ancients as the Cyrenaica, braving the disfavor of an old-style Turkish pasha, and climbed Mount Olympus with an escort of Ottoman soldiers.

A Brave Girl.

Jennie Creek of Mill Grove is one of the two American girls entitled to wear the famous five-pointed gold star of the French Legion of Honor, founded by Napoleon Bonaparte. She is only 18 years old, and the medal was awarded to her nearly seven years ago to commemorate a deed of exceptional bravery and presence of mind. In the afternoon of Sept. 10, 1893, she saved a world's fair special train from plunging through a burning trestle. There were many prominent French officials on this train, and they secured for her the golden star and scarlet ribbon. Jennie Creek has accepted the invitation of the National Humane Society of France to be a guest of honor at the Paris exposition. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

A New Idea in Rat Traps.

A rat and mouse trap which has been patented in all the countries throughout the civilized world issuing patents, the invention of Heinrich Benseler, of Beilrod, Germany, is really an ingenious arrangement, as the animal never gets a chance even to nibble at the bait, and when it once gets into the trap it is automatically locked there. A modified form of this bottle-shaped trap, however, is employed for catching rats and vermin in the house. The small end of the field trap is inserted in the mouse hole, the tubular passageway forming a continuation of the underground passages. The animal in trying to get the bait naturally enters the hole and is thus induced to enter the tubular passage from which it cannot escape.

BY BERTHA N. CLAY

He laid the notes down with a feeling of burning pain, a thrill of passionate anguish that frightened him. Nothing on earth, no power of man, should take her from him. She was his own, and he would hold her until life was ended. Then he owned to himself that Mr. Haye was right—cruelly right—that without money, with an invalid father, a falling business, he could not take a wife. It was right to defer it. He must be patient. After all, he had not lost her, he reflected. She was still his own.

"Have you got some good news there, Felix?" asked the feeble voice of his father, and the next moment Felix had repressed the emotion so rapidly mastering him as he crushed the letter in his hand.

"It is only a note from Violet, father," he replied; and the satisfied smile on his father's face rewarded him.

Darcy Lonsdale knew that while Violet was true to his idolized son nothing else would hurt him.

They were alone—father and son—for Kate had gone to the nursery—and when the hall-door bell rang, Felix said, cheerfully: "Here is a visitor."

"Few visitors will come here; we have lost a fortune, not found one," said Darcy Lonsdale, who had never spoken a cynical word before.

It was a visitor, and one whom they were both well content to see. It was Evelyn Lester, with a basket of grapes and delicacies of all kinds for the invalid, and, what was better still, with the light of love and kindness on her sweet face, and with words of sympathy on her lips.

As Felix saw her bending over his father, he had wished for a moment that Violet had done something like this—had come to see them in their distress.

It was a pretty picture—the invalid lying on his couch, the girl with her sweet face and earnest eyes bending over him, and watching them at a distance, the handsome son. The fire burned brightly, the lamps were lighted, while outside the north wind wailed mournfully.

Evelyn took up a bunch of ripe purple grapes.

"I want to see you eat some of these," she said. "Mrs. Lonsdale told me that you ate nothing yesterday." And taking the grapes out one by one in her white fingers she held them to his lips.

How could he refuse? He was so weak and feeble, he had been so completely crushed by cruel words, that the girl's simple kindness moved him.

"I have been heart-broken, Eve," he said. "I did not care to get well."

"You will live it down," she returned, gently; "and those who have doubted you will be the first to feel ashamed of their injustice."

"You have never doubted me, Eve?" "Oh, never! How could I? I should doubt all the world first!"

She rose from her chair and knelt down by his side. She took both his hands—such thin, worn hands!—in hers, and held them there.

"I came to say something to you, Mr. Lonsdale," said she; "and now that I am here I have hardly the courage. Promise not to be angry with me."

"I could not be if I tried, dear child," he replied.

Her face flushed, and the light deepened in her eyes.

"You have known me all my life," she said; "have you not?—ever since I came here, a little, friendless child."

"Yes, it is true, Eve."

"And you have always been kind to me. I have come to you in a score of childish troubles, and you were always kind to me. Now I want you to let me repay you for all your kindness. She spoke so quickly that he could not interrupt her.

"I want to help you. You know that I have money, plenty of money, all lying idle. I want none, and Aunt Jane will not touch it. Do accept it; let me give it to you. I shall never want it, for I shall never marry. Do take it; you would make me happier than anyone in the wide world if you would. I am so grieved and so sorry that I would go out and work for you if you would let me. If you will not accept it, borrow it until you can repay me. Do not refuse me, let me help you."

Felix had come nearer to her, listening in wonder to the passionate words. Mr. Lonsdale drew the fair head down nearer to him.

"So you would give me all your fortune, Eve?" There was a glad light in her eyes when she raised them to his.

"I would—double my fortune, if I had it," she replied.

"And why, Eve—tell me why you would be so good to me?"

offer made to me than any other. You have restored some of my self-esteem, child—some of my self-respect."

Evelyn looked up in wonder, for Felix had bent down and kissed her hand. He gazed at the sweet, flushed face with wonder.

"Eve," he said, "you are an angel! I shall never forget what you have said and done. I shall never forget that you have given a desponding, almost despairing man, hope."

So the winter passed. Mr. Lonsdale recovered his health, but slowly. The spring of his life seemed broken; he found living his trouble down more difficult than he had anticipated. He had withdrawn himself from all positions of trust; he gave up his office as church warden; he would no longer be overseer.

"If they could believe that of me," he said, "I will hold no trust among them."

And he did not. What business was brought to his office he did, but he no longer mixed with his fellow-men.

So winter wore away, and genial, lovely spring heralded by snowdrops and crocuses, came to gladden the hearts and souls of men.

CHAPTER VI.

"Sir Owen Chevenix." The inhabitants of Lifford uttered the name with awe and respect. Those who had never seen Sir Owen made a point of talking about him; while those who had not only seen him, but talked to him, were elevated almost to another sphere. Sir Owen was a man of note. He was that much-to-be-esteemed person, a millionaire, and he had just purchased the finest estate in Lonsdale.

It was called Garswood Hall, and lay between Lifford and the town of Oldstone.

Sir Owen had arrived in great state at Garswood. Servants, carriages, horses, grandeur of all kinds, had preceded him. They came the crowning intelligence, he was not married—the millionaire on whom fortune had lavished her gifts.

Maid and matrons took the greatest interest in him, the grandees of the county waited upon him, fashionable mothers offered him advice about his household, about the parties he intended giving, and about the people he must invite, while the squires were much interested in his stable and pack of hounds.

Have you any pretty girls in this part of the world? he asked, one day of Capt. Hill, the sporting man par excellence of the neighborhood.

"I believe so," he replied. "I have heard people say so. It is not in my line, you understand."

"Exactly. Well, it is in mine—and a very pleasant line I find it. The only thing I dreaded in coming hither was that I should find nothing but rustic beauty of the milkmaid sort. I have a decided distaste for it; and the fact of the matter is, I am looking out for a beautiful wife."

"It is a very sensible thing to do," said Capt. Hill.

Sir Owen Chevenix very soon became the great man of the county. He did not like Oldstone, but he did like Lifford; he had little patience with the gentry, but he liked the sporting squires. He was so lavish in his orders, so extravagant in his expenditure, that the tradesmen of Lifford looked upon him as an angel of Providence, while his coming seemed to have given fresh life to the county.

When the month of blossoms came round Sir Owen was quite settled at Garswood. He had won golden opinions by not going up to town for the season. Now that he was a landed proprietor, he declared his intention of remaining on his land.

He had already attended one or two meetings of different kinds at Lifford, and he received an invitation from Dan Hunter, the vicar, to attend the annual festival of the school children, held always in the month of May. He sent a check which caused the good vicar to open his eyes. Then, someone having told him that all the elite of the neighborhood attended the fete, he went.

In a field near the vicarage the school children played to their heart's content, while in the vicarage grounds the elite enjoyed themselves in quieter fashion. The military band from Oldstone was there, pretty white tents were erected; there were croquet and lawn tennis, quadrilles for those who liked dancing, and archery for those who enjoyed shooting.

Sir Owen Chevenix, having heard that all the pretty girls in the neighborhood would be there, decided on going himself, and they had kept it a secret, intending to surprise their guests. As a matter of course, beautiful Violet Haye was to be there. Evelyn Lester had been invited, and the vicar had discussed with his wife the advisability of sending an invitation to Felix Lonsdale.

"There is a black mark against the whole family," said the vicar, who forgot at times that his gospel was the gospel of peace, and thought more of justice than of mercy. "I do not say that Darcy Lonsdale was guilty of that which was laid to his charge, but there is a mark against him."

"Against the father, Daniel, but not the son," corrected his wife.

"You might as well try to distinguish between husband and wife as between father and son," rejoined the vicar.

"There is another thing," said the diplomatic lady; "we must ask Violet Haye. She is, in truth, the greatest attraction of the fete, and, as a matter of fact, I do not quite see how they can be parted on such an occasion."

"I shall do it against my will," remarked the vicar.

"Well, that is far better than not doing it at all," replied Mrs. Hunter. "It will be a kind of test; if we see that people seem shy of Felix Lonsdale, we must not ask him again."

So Felix received an invitation. If he had known how and why it was given to him, he would have placed it under his heel and have gone twenty miles in the opposite direction; as it was, it gave him unbounded pleasure. He was to meet Violet; he would spend a whole day with her. The prospect delighted him. He sat up the greater part of the night, so that by his unusual holiday business might not suffer. It seemed to him the time would never come when he would meet Violet.

Nor had beautiful Violet Haye been unmindful of the coming fete. Her father had looked grave over the milliner's bill when it was given to him; but Violet had determined on being queen of the fete. Mrs. Brownson, Mrs. Baulders and Miss Stanley would certainly be there, perhaps even Lady Rolfe, and she must be dressed suitably to meet those potentates.

A beautiful costume of white muslin, rich lace and blue ribbons was provided, with a wonderful little hat that seemed to be made of feathers; and Violet decided that she had never looked so well before. She pictured to herself an easy sovereignty. Eve Lester was the only one she feared; but then Eve was never given to dress and flirtation.

Lovely, laughing May had given her latest notice for the fete; everyone was full of congratulations—the sunshine, the music, everything was so beautiful. Felix said nothing but the bright face of his love. They walked over the smooth, green lawns together; and then Violet, turning suddenly to her lover, said:

"Have you heard all the wonderful stories about the newcomer, Sir Owen Chevenix?"

"I do not like to gossip," he replied, "but I have heard that he is a wealthy and likes to spend his money freely."

Violet's face had quite a light upon it as she continued:

"People say that his plate is superb, Felix. I should like to eat my dinner off golden plate."

"It would be no better for that, Violet," he replied, laughing with all his heart to be able to make her such a present. "You know the saying about the dish of herbs?"

"Yes, I know it, but I do not believe in it. How wonderful it must be, Felix, to live in such a grand house, to have so much money and so many luxuries!"

"I know something that I would rather have than all Sir Owen's luxuries," said Felix.

"What is it?" she asked, eagerly.

"Your love, Violet." And she knew that he meant what he said.

Soon the fete was at its height. From the meadow came the hearty shouts of the children at play. Suddenly there seemed to be a slight commotion among the guests, and Felix saw the vicar standing with a gentleman who was certainly not remarkable for the handsomeness of his personal appearance; but the vicar seemed to be impressed by his presence. Then Captain Hill joined them, and the vicar went away, leaving the two men to talk.

The newcomer, Sir Owen Chevenix, turned to his friend with a smile.

"It is not bad," he said, "but I see nothing that repays me for the trouble of coming."

Captain Hill turned slowly and motioned to the great elm tree, where Violet and her lover stood.

"That is the prettiest sight in these grounds," he remarked; "and a curious light came over the heavy face of Sir Owen Chevenix as he gazed. At the same time some keen, subtle instinct which he could not understand told Captain Hill that he had acted cruelly."

"You are right," agreed Sir Owen Chevenix, looking intently at Violet—"that is by far the prettiest sight in the grounds. Who is that young lady?"

"Miss Violet Haye," replied the captain. "An honest impulse prompted him to add: 'She is engaged to Felix Lonsdale,' but a subtle sense that such a statement would be displeasing to Sir Owen restrained him."

"Will you introduce me to Miss Haye?" asked the baronet.

"It would be better for Mrs. Hunter to do that," he replied. "I am not one of Miss Haye's friends."

Sir Owen walked quickly away. There was a look on his face as of earnest purpose when he saw Mrs. Hunter. She listened to his request, and wondered.

"Introduce you to Miss Haye?" she said. "Of course I will, with the greatest pleasure. Then, goodly, some subtle doubt crossed her mind, but she would not think of it for one moment. Sir Owen Chevenix was the great personage of the entertainment, the great attraction of the fete. She must certainly do as requested. Why not? Violet Haye was a beautiful girl, and it was only reasonable that everyone should admire her. So she walked across the lawn with Sir Owen, who was the observed of all observers."

Nellie Violet met her lover saw the two until Mrs. Hunter spoke.

"Miss Haye," she said, "Sir Owen Chevenix has asked me to introduce him to you."

Violet's face flushed hotly—it was so sudden, it was such a surprise. This was the rich baronet of whom so short a time before she had been speaking with such awe and wonder. She bowed, and murmured a few words—she never remembered them—then, as a matter of course, Mrs. Hunter was compelled to introduce Felix. Sir Owen acknowledged the introduction by a few careless words. The whole scene occurred in the radiant sunlight, in the midst of blooming flowers and happy faces—yet it was the prelude to a terrible tragedy.

"A beautiful day," said Sir Owen to Violet; "a charming scene, too—quite rural, quite pastoral—the kind of thing I like. I shall have to have a quadrille, will you favor me with the first, Miss Haye?"

She answered "Yes," because she did not know how to refuse him.

"I had no idea that this kind of thing could be so well managed in a place like Lifford," said Sir Owen. "It inspires me with an idea—I must really give a fete at Garswood."

"That would be very pleasant," returned Violet, shyly.

"It would if you were there," thought Sir Owen; "and there you shall be the queen of the fete if I can manage it!"

"You will remember you have promised me the first quadrille, Miss Haye. I see Lady Rolfe. I must pay my devotions to her," and with a low bow Sir Owen turned away.

"What splendid diamonds!" cried Violet. "What a horrible man!" thought Felix. Violet had been struck with the gems, Felix had been chiefly impressed by the awkward gait and ungainly carriage. He turned to Violet.

NEW BUILDING MATERIAL.

Brick of Quartz Sand and Lime Sold to Be Superior to the Old.

For thousands of years men have been making brick out of clay, and pretty good brick, too. But recently a new kind has come into vogue. It is composed chiefly of quartz sand, bound together with a small amount of lime. In the process of manufacture the compound is subjected to the influence of steam at high pressure. When properly made this brick is said to be hard, water-proof and able to resist the action of acids. A lack of uniformity in the quality has been noticed, however. "Limestone brick," which are made in cold, wet weather, seem to give less satisfaction than those produced under other meteorological conditions.

But there is now promise that this difficulty will soon be obviated. A consular report from Germany announces that a Zurich chemist, Wilhelm Schwartz, has found a way to get good results every time. The secret lies in controlling the amount of moisture admitted to the compound and in maintaining the temperature within certain limits for a time. The former part of the process is managed in a vacuum, so that no dampness can be imparted by the atmosphere. Herr Schwartz has invented a machine of his own to do the mixing. Much confidence is expressed in the substantial value of the innovation reported.—New York Tribune.

Dangerous Voyage. Deep-water sailors are apt to view with contempt the seamen who go on coastwise ships, but these longshoremen are often skillful, and certainly they are exposed to many dangers. A New York exchange describes the voyage of the schooner William Bell from Charleston, S. C., to New London, Conn.

It foundered at sea in a furious gale, and the captain and five men went down with it. Two seamen, named Lovd and Robinson, kept themselves afloat and found refuge on the roof of the cabin, which had become detached.

To this the two men clung until the hurricane had spent its fury. On this novel raft they spent five days and nights, without food or drink and with very little rest, as the waves frequently swept over them.

Robinson twice slipped into the water, but each time was rescued by Lovd. In their hunger they ate part of their leather sea-boots, and when picked up by a passing schooner they were on the verge of delirium; but they were rescued in time, and soon recovered.

How They "Court" in the North. A Glasgow servant girl went home a few evenings ago with her head wrapped up in a shawl.

Her young mistress asked her what ailed her, and was told that she was suffering from a bad attack of toothache, brought on by sitting in the park.

"But you ought not to sit on such a cold, chilly night as this," said the mistress. "You should walk at a smart pace."

The girl looked at her a minute as though pitying her ignorance, and then answered:

"You canna court right walking; you must sit doon!"—London Answers.

Safety Elevators. Elevators have now been rendered safe in case of fall by means of air cushions. An elevator in the Empire Building, New York, was allowed recently to fall twenty stories. The fall of 300 feet did not break eggs lying on a marble slab in the middle of the car nor spill water from a glass.

The Human Brain. A German biologist has calculated that the human brain contains 300,000,000 nerve cells, 5,000,000 of which die and are succeeded by new ones every day. At this rate we get an entirely new brain every sixty days.

Burglar-Proof Glass. Burglar-proof glass has been invented by a smart manufacturer. It is made by pouring molten glass over a network of steel wire. It is especially adapted for skylights and jewelers' windows.

Book Output. Germany publishes more than twice as many books as France every year, from 20,000 to 25,000 being her annual output to the 10,000 of France.

"OUR DICK" WILL WIN THE DAY.

A mighty victory's coming, boys,
Our Dick will win the day;
As Governor of Illinois
Our Dick will win the day.

Oh, he's our choice of candidates,
For him the laurel wreath awaits,
All hail the name of Richard Yates!
Our Dick will win the day!

CHORUS.

Hurrah! hurrah! Come vote the good,
old way!
Hurrah! hurrah! Our Dick will win the day!
We'll show the world Republicans have come in power to stay,
True to the State and the Union.

A thrill of rapture stirs the air,
Our Dick will win the day;
The State proclaims it everywhere,
Our Dick will win the day.

He stands for all that's good and true;
Treated his noble part to do,
His father's fame shall ring anew,
Our Dick will win the day.

Oh, wave Columbia's flag on high,
Our Dick will win the day;
Let Freedom's glorious colors fly,
Our Dick will win the day.

The Richard Yates of '01
Was famous for his duty done,
All hail to father and to son!
Our Dick will win the day.

Then let the mighty chorus ring,
Our Dick will win the day;
Let Illinois exulting sing,
Our Dick will win the day.

For Governor we want the best,
And Richard Yates will stand the test,
With him the people will be blest,
Our Dick will win the day.

ALL RECORDS ARE BROKEN.
Illinois Steel Employees Receive the Highest Amount Ever Paid.

In the last pay-roll of the Illinois Steel Company, at South Chicago, could be found an object lesson in prosperity as significant to the American workman as dollar wheat is to the American farmer. All day files of employees passed through the offices of the works and when the last accounts were checked up the largest pay-roll in the history of the company had been distributed to its 9,000 workmen.

The amount disbursed was $218,000, which constituted a two weeks' wage. This sum, however, is said by the officials of the company not to exceed greatly the average pay-roll that has been maintained throughout the year.

Comparing the picture at the works now with one presented four years ago the figures given become filled with significance. Almost four years ago to a day less than half the number of workmen were given employment. A part of the plant was closed down and employment was uncertain. At that time the best daily wage paid to experienced workmen was $1.20. To-day not a laborer from the humblest furnace man to the expert mechanic draws less than $1.50 a day for his labor.

These figures, however, do not reveal the increase in wages that have been made throughout the different grades of workmen, but computed upon the lowest basis a raise of more than 25 per cent. is shown. Three times the Illinois Steel Company in recent months has given its employees a raise in their wages, until to-day the entire force of laborers receive the highest pay it has ever received in the history of the company. In addition the company is now planning extensive and costly additions and improvements which will give greater facilities and increase the pay-rolls. The company is looking forward to a busy season.

They See the Difference.
The Democratic farmers are beginning to see that it is to their interest to support McKinley. A sample case is that of Frederick B. Cannerford, of Pann. In a recent conversation he denounced Democracy and its leaders.

He says that he has made more money in the last four years than he ever did. He has never before supported a Republican ticket, but this year proposes to vote for McKinley, Roosevelt and Yates. Albert and Fred Weber, two successful farmers of the same neighborhood, make the same declaration and say there are hundreds of farmers in that vicinity, who formerly supported Bryan, who will now be for McKinley. They are perceiving that the Republican party is extending their markets, while the Democratic party is trying to contract them.

Yates to Speak at Home.
It has been definitely arranged that Judge Yates will open his campaign in his home town of Jacksonville, Saturday, Sept. 1. Judges Eldridge Hanney and O. N. Carter, of Chicago, will be with Judge Yates at this meeting and will make speeches. It is possible that Congressman Reeves may also be present. This would bring together on the platform the four men who were candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor. Should Governor Tamm return from his Western trip in time he, too, will be asked to address this meeting of Judge Yates' campaign. It is proposed to make the occasion a great demonstration, as the old neighbors of the Republican gubernatorial candidate desire a chance to show what they think of him.

Want McKinley Elected.
A. W. Law, of Galesburg, who is with the volunteer army in the Philippines, writing home from Victoria, Isle of Negros, says in part: "Our stay in these islands depends largely upon the result of the coming election at home. If you re-elect President McKinley all will be at peace at once. If that talking machine, Bryan, is elected, the traitors at home who encouraged these ignorant natives to kill, they will order us to fold up our flag, give up our possessions here which we have fought for and say to the world that our prestige among the nations is a thing of the past. Never elect Bryan, or with his election order us to haul down our flag."

Will Make It Unanimous.
The Central Sentinel says that judging from the way the German Democrats in St. Clair County are following the course of Gus Koerner, Judge Dill and many others it will not be necessary to hold an election in that county this fall, as it will be unanimous for McKinley, Yates and Rodenberg.

Not a Democrat in It.
The Loda Times has found the banner Republican district in the State. It is the Swick school district in Loda township, there being not a Democrat in the district.

These priceless possessions are ours. Do your duty, encourage us by electing President McKinley. The G. O. P. is our party."

Has Helped the Farmer.
A farmer in Macon County got his eyes opened to his own interests in this way: During the latter part of the last Democratic administration he was thoroughly convinced that the only salvation for the country was the free coinage of silver at 10 to 1, and he conscientiously voted for Bryan in 1896. During the same period he borrowed money at 7 per cent., mortgaging his farm and paying $100 commission for the money. After the election of McKinley, Democratic agents looked him up and loaned him the money for 5 per cent. without commission. A few days ago he told a friend about it and confessed how he had been prejudiced in 1896, and added: "I have voted my last Democratic ticket."

His Record Stainless.
Judge Yates, familiarly known as "Dick," is a young man of vigor, independence and ability. He is moreover honest and fearless, and when elected will be Governor of the State. His hands are clean and he has no pledges to politicians to make good. He has the confidence of those who know him best, and his word is out that this State will and shall have the best and purest administration that wisdom, knowledge and ambition can produce. His record is stainless and honorable, and the mantle of his father, the famous "war Governor," will be worthily worn by his son. The voters of the State can safely trust him, and he will receive their hearty support.—Henry Republican.

Paste This in Your Hat.
Young men, paste this in your hat. Before you vote the Democratic ticket read it over a few times. Remember these are the words of the gallant Gen. Lawton, and were written by him from the Philippines to his loved ones. They were written just before he poured out his life's blood in his brave effort to maintain the flag and the honor of his country.

"If I am shot by a Filipino bullet it might as well come from one of my own men, because I know from observations confirmed by captured prisoners, that the continuance of fighting is chiefly due to reports that are sent out from America."

Paste it in your hat.

Judge Hoblit for McKinley.
Judge James G. Hoblit, of Lincoln, one of the most influential Democrats in Logan County, will this year vote for McKinley and Yates. In an interview he said: "I believe that the attitude of Mr. Bryan and his followers on the money question is full of peril to every interest in the country except that of silver mining, and I fear the civil service law would fare very ill at his hands. Mr. Bryan appears to me to have more zeal than discretion and to be possessed of more 'isms' than solid attainments. In my view, we must choose the lesser of the two evils and vote for McKinley."

Drummers Favor McKinley.
The Commercial Travelers' McKinley Club has been reorganized in Chicago and will form the nucleus of a larger organization over the country, with a membership of about 15,000, several thousand stronger than it was four years ago. "Our club," said President George H. Green, "will aid in organizing similar clubs all over the country. After Sept. 1 we will have noontime meetings addressed by speakers of national reputation. We are now making arrangements for a visit to President McKinley at Canton. We will leave Chicago in a special train about 6:00 a.m."

Yates Will Have a Long Lead.
Yates is making a strong canvass and the chances for his victory are favorable. Illinois at one time was a Democratic as South Carolina is now, but it reformed many years ago, and is not going to backslide this year. The conditions in this State in 1890 and 1892, when it was carried by the Democrats, were widely different from what they are this year. On both the Presidential and the State ticket the Republicans will have a long lead in Illinois in 1900. By the abuse which the Democrats are heaping on Yates they concede his election.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Get an Increase in Wages.
Eighteen molders employed at Fisher's foundry at Macomb are participating largely in prosperity since last week, when they began to draw pay on an increased wage scale which will amount to between 20 and 25 cents per man each day. Less than two years ago there was another increase, amounting to from 35 to 45 cents a day for each man.

Republican Women to Meet.
A meeting of the Woman's Republican State Committee of Illinois will be held in the Marquette Club rooms, 714 Great Northern Hotel, Chicago, Monday, Aug. 27, for the purpose of placing the committee in active operation and to receive reports from Congressional districts as to work performed and projected.

Will Make It Unanimous.
The Central Sentinel says that judging from the way the German Democrats in St. Clair County are following the course of Gus Koerner, Judge Dill and many others it will not be necessary to hold an election in that county this fall, as it will be unanimous for McKinley, Yates and Rodenberg.

Not a Democrat in It.
The Loda Times has found the banner Republican district in the State. It is the Swick school district in Loda township, there being not a Democrat in the district.

Ball Bearings.
The use of ball bearings has caused so much less friction in vehicles of various kinds that new devices with this same object in view are looked upon with great interest. A manufacturer of the round bearings, with which cyclists and others are so familiar, has recently been experimenting on another line. The new device consists of small steel rollers instead of balls. These are held in bronze cages. The idea has been tried on the wheels of heavy vehicles, notably omnibuses in England. It is reported that with these roller bearings one man may start an omnibus with very little effort. There is no reason why roller bearings properly engaged and adjusted should not have quite as little friction as the round balls. There are many bits of mechanism where the slender steel roller would, according to all practical ideas, be even more effective than the balls. The wheels of heavy trucks are to come in for the next series of experiments, and if successful there is talk of trying them on the wheels of locomotives and other rolling stock where weight and pressure are tremendous. It is believed that the use of these roller bearings on locomotives alone would save a large proportion of the wear and tear to which these ponderous machines are subjected. If the theory of the roller bearing is a good one, ball bearings have had their day. They may be retained for light vehicles, but for heavy ones the new plan offers decided advantages.

Lawyer as a Musician.
Only those who have enjoyed in his Surrey home the hospitality of Sir Richard Webster, the new master of the rolls, and on whom the Queen has just conferred a peerage, can really claim to know the grave, stolid, and often hampered-looking lawyer whose face has so long been familiar in the courts and in Parliament. At Winterfold he sinks all his official cares off his broad shoulders and enjoys life as heartily as when he was a Trinity undergraduate and a champion athlete. Here he spends his time in the varied delights of cricket, shooting and music. He spends many of his few spare hours with his organ, and he still can sing a song more effectively almost than any man at the bar, even including his great rival in law and song, Sir Edward Clarke.

STORY OF THE PEKIN TRAGEDY.

History of the Campaign of the Powers Against the Chinese Capital—Oriental Duplicity Conceals the Fate of the Legations for Weeks.

The siege of the foreigners in the British legation at Peking practically began on June 10. For months before that date the Boxers had been persistent in their attacks on foreign missionaries in Peking and Shan-Tung provinces. In Peking the anti-foreign element was daily growing bolder.

The diplomatic corps met in Peking on May 20 and unanimously decided that the failure of the Tientsin-Yamen reply to the joint note of May 20 made the presence of guards for the legations imperative, and they were summoned ten days later.

The international guards were landed at Taku on May 21 and on May 24 they left Tientsin by special train for Peking. By this time the whole of Peking province was in a state of revolt against the foreigners. The city of Peking was the storm center. Missionaries were murdered throughout the province, mission stations were burned, and the emperor attacked. The Chinese troops were sent against the Boxer mobs, but the generals were punished for endeavoring to suppress them. The railroad from Tientsin was destroyed in several places. The Empress Dowager gave every evidence of being in sympathy with the anti-foreign crusade.

The powers, alarmed at the situation, landed several thousand marines at Taku. It was deemed expedient to increase the legation guards in Peking and on June 10 a force of 1,500 marines under Vice-Admiral Seymour left Tientsin for the Chinese capital in two special trains. The following day a second detachment started, bringing the strength of the expedition up to 2,044 men, divided as follows:

British 1,000
Americans 104
Russians 415
Germans 120
French 128
Italians 40

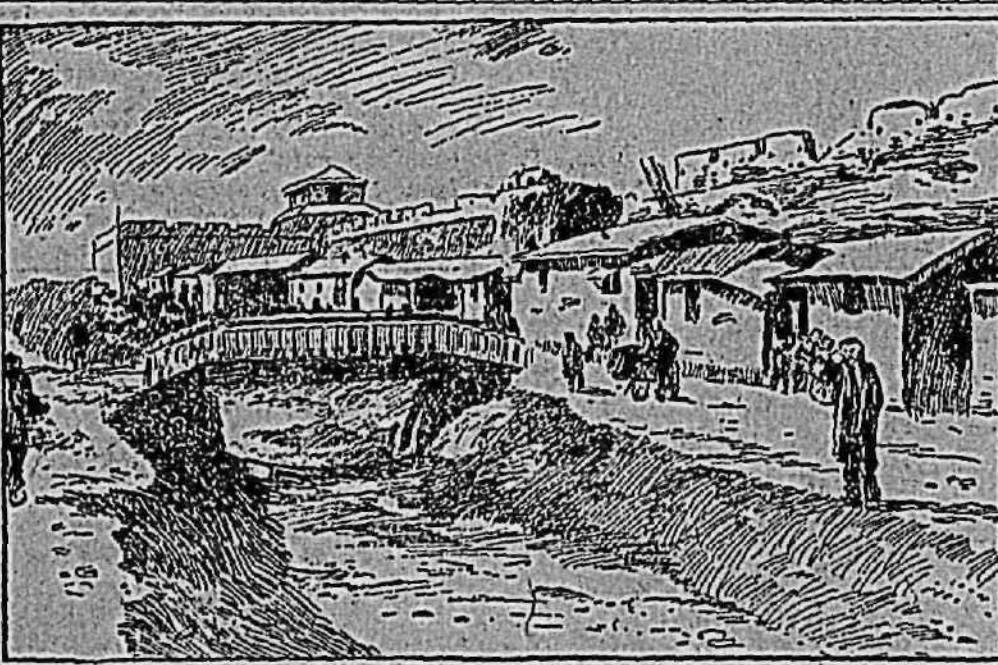

Admiral Seymour's force never reached Peking. After it left Tientsin it practically was enveloped up in the mystery of the interior. On June 11 it was known to have reached Lang-Fang, half way to the capital. Here the railroad had to be abandoned and a battle fought in which the Chinese were defeated. But after June 11 no word came from Admiral Seymour. Alarmed at the possibility of the little international force being wiped out, the admirals in command of the allied fleet at Taku resolved on heroic measures. The commanders of the Chinese fleet at Taku seemed to be unwilling for hostilities, and on June 17, after a council of war, an ultimatum demanded the surrender of the fortifications. In reply to the ultimatum the Chinese opened fire on the allied fleet. An engagement followed, in which the United States warships took no part. The force was finally captured after a severe struggle, in which the allies suffered heavily.

ADMIRAL EDWARD H. SEYMOUR.

The Taku forts no longer a menace, the allies began the march on Tientsin. Russia and Japan landed troops, and marines were added from all the warships in the harbor. It was not until June 23 that the allies were able to reach Tientsin, and only then after a severe engagement with the Chinese troops. Admiral Seymour's force was then reported to be within ten miles of Tientsin, and it was asserted by Chinese officials that the ministers, legation attaches, and all foreign residents were with him. This report, unhappily, proved false.

A courier succeeded in reaching the allied camp at Tientsin with the news that Admiral Seymour's force was surrounded ten miles outside of the city and hard pressed. A force was promptly sent to his relief, and on June 26 the Seymour column was brought back to Tientsin. It had been fighting continuously for 46 days and lost many men in killed and wounded.

On June 26 the most circumstantial details of the murder of Baron von Ketteler, the German minister, were received at Shanghai. It transpired that the German minister was murdered on June 26 in practically the manner described by the Chinese officials three days before.

The powers used the utmost dispatch in gathering an army to march on Peking. The United States sent the Ninth regiment from Manila. Russia sent troops from Port Arthur, France from Indo-China, England from India, Japan from Tokyo. England ordered seven regiments. President McKinley directed another regiment to sail from the Philippines and several more from the United States. Preparations for war on a huge scale were made by every great power.

Mystery Hidden in Peking.
In the meantime the walls of Peking covered a mystery that defied the scrutiny of the world. The most alarming reports were disseminated by the Chinese officials at Shanghai. The news of the murder of the German minister was confirmed. It was gradually admitted that all the legations had been destroyed, and that all the foreigners had taken refuge in the compound of the British legation. The source of all news was Sheng, the Chinese director of telegraphs at Shanghai. He held the wires leading to Peking. One day he would declare all foreigners safe, the next he would seemingly admit that they had been massacred.

On July 11, however, Secretary Hay handed to the Chinese minister at Washington a cipher dispatch from the State Department from Minister Conger. When translated it read:

"In British legation under continuous shot and shell from Chinese troops. Quick relief alone can prevent general massacre."

For three days Europe challenged the authenticity of the Conger dispatch, still adhering to the belief that all foreigners had perished on July 6. Then, on July 24, the foreign office at London received a dispatch from the British consul at Tientsin, dated July 21, stating that a killed, seventy wounded and abandoning a three-inch rifle and a Colt gun.

Two days later, on June 23, Maj. Walker, with 180 American marines and two companies of British marines, marched on Tientsin, supported by 300 additional British marines and 500 Welsh Fusiliers. A second column made up of Russian and German troops followed. In the engagement which followed the allies were driven back.

Attacking the Walled City.
On July 9 Gen. Dowdard (British), commanding the British, 400 Russians, and 100 American marines, with Gen. Yukushung and 1,000 Japanese soldiers, captured the Chinese position southwest of the city, killing 350 and capturing four guns. Gen. Dowdard reported to the British war office that the honors of the day rested with the Americans and Japanese.

There was three hours of sharp fighting on July 11, the allies losing 100 killed and wounded, without gaining any decided advantage.

The Ninth regiment arrived from Manila on July 11. It was immediately sent into the front. Two days later came the severest engagement so far in the campaign. The allies attacked the native walled city of Tientsin and were repulsed after an all-day battle. The Ninth regiment suffered severely, its commander, Col. Liscum, being killed, together with eighteen of his men. Seventy-five men of the Ninth were wounded.

The following day, however, the plan originally agreed upon was carried out. The Japanese engineers gallantly made a breach in the walls of the native city and it was carried by storm, the shattered Ninth regiment being one of the first to enter the town. On the night of the 14th Chinese renegades burned the larger part of the city and the stores and houses were plundered.

After the capture of the walled city of Tientsin the Chinese fell back in the direction of Peking and a long delay ensued. The allies waited for reinforcements, gathered supplies, and organized the transport necessary for the final advance on the Chinese capital.

On Aug. 8, however, the advance began, and the progress was rapid. Two days later the allies, 19,000 strong, attacked the Chinese at Pot-tang. In the severe engagement which followed the allies were victorious, at a cost of 1,200 men killed and wounded.

On Aug. 7 the march was resumed and Yang-tsun, eighteen miles from Tientsin, captured the allies losing 700 men, sixty of whom were Americans.

On Aug. 8 the allied army reached Nan-Tai-Nin, where, after a brief fight, the Chinese fled. Aug. 10 Gen. Chaffee reported the arrival at Ho-Si-Wu, half way to Peking, and the following day the allied army was at Matow, twenty miles from the capital. The rest of the distance was covered without opposition.

Fight Your Liver

If you want to. But look out, or it will get the start of you. If it does, you will have dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache, poor blood, constipation.

Perhaps you have these already. Then take one of Ayer's Pills at bedtime. These pills gently and surely master the liver; they are an easy and safe laxative for the whole family; they give prompt relief and make a permanent cure. Always keep a box of them in the house.

25 cents a box. All druggists.

"I have raised a family of eleven children, all living at the present time, and I would not think I could keep house without Ayer's Pills. I have used them for twenty years, and there is no family laxative their equal."—S. C. DARDEN, Myrtle, Miss., May 24, 1900.

Smart Alex.

A man being about to die summoned his four sons to his side and said:

"My sons, I will leave to John one-third of my estate, to Alex one-fifth, to James one-half and to Thomas one-fourth, and thus you will all Share Equally."

John and James and Thomas took Paper and Pencil and began figuring, but Alex took his hat and started out.

"Where are you going?" the other three asked. "Do you not intend figuring out the problem?"

"Not much," said Alex. "I am going for a Lawyer to break the will."

Moral—Sometimes the Lawyer can Relieve the Heirs of Much of the Figuring.—Baltimore American.

Rat-Catching Snakes.

They appear to be turning snakes to good account in Brazil, for rats have become so abundant that a domestic snake, the gloya, which has about the circumference of the arm, is sold in the market-places in Rio Janeiro to be kept in the house as a protection against rodents. It would seem that the serpent pursues its prey more for the pleasure there is in it than from a sense of hunger, since it is said that it rarely eats the rats caught. Similar in its habits and attachments to the domestic cat of more northern latitudes, the gloya will, it is said, find its way back to the house of its master, even if transported to a considerable distance.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cakes, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. O. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Looking Forward.

They were discussing the new play with which the season of 1900 had been opened. "And what did you think of Jack Napples? Did you like his comedy business?"

"Comedy business! Huh! It was the merest automobile play." Ah! even there the horse was but a memory.—Philadelphia Press.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about 1/4 as much. All grocers sell it, 15c and 25c.

His Idea of It.

Mamma (to Bobby, just returned from an afternoon party)—What kind of refreshments did you have, dear? Bobby—Liquid. Mamma—Liquid? Bobby—Yes; us fellows all skipped out and went swimmin'—Puck.

No Fun at All.

Mrs.—You didn't go to the theater with your cousin Tom, after all, I thought your fancy had no objection. Mabel—He hadn't. That's why I didn't go.—London Judy.

Vast Food Supplies of an Army.

For an army of 30,000 men and 10,000 horses for three months it is estimated that 11,000 tons of food and forage are necessary.

Lane's Family Medicine

Moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary. Acts gently on the liver and kidneys. Cures sick headache. Price 25c and 50c.

Pilo's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'Brien, 322 Third Avenue, N. Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

The Sultan of Turkey has been presented with a sumptuously equipped horseless carriage.

Hall's Catarrh Cure. Taken internally. Price 75 cents.

Nearly one-third of the beer consumed in the world is brewed in Germany.

John Winslow's SOUTHERN SHOT for Children. Relieves the pain caused by worms, cures all kinds of colic, 25c a bottle. In time, sold by druggists.

Flow steel spheres are in use in Sweden for billiard balls.

NEBRASKA THE LAND OF PLENTY

I wonder why it is that so many men spend their days working hard on rented farms, barely making enough to get along, with no great prospect ahead of owning their own homes, when within a few hours' journey is a land of plenty—Nebraska—where all kinds of grain and fruit can be raised with the least amount of labor; where cattle and hogs fed on corn bring a handsome profit; where the climate is healthful and churches and schools abound; where land is cheap and can be bought on very easy terms.

Think of this, and if you want information about the country send me for "The Corn Belt," a beautifully illustrated monthly paper that tells all about Nebraska, and also for "The West Nebraska Grazing Country," an interesting illustrated booklet containing a large sectional map of Nebraska.

On the first and third Tuesdays of each month during the balance of this year cheap excursion tickets will be sold over our road to Nebraska, so that people may see and see for themselves. Ask your ticket agent about this.

At the present time there are more houses for rent in this city than at any time heretofore in the history of the place. This is not altogether due to removals but largely to the fact that many who had heretofore rented have bought lots and built houses of their own.

During the civil war, as well as in our late war with Spain, diarrhoea was one of the most troublesome diseases the army had to contend with.
In many instances it became chronic and the old soldiers still suffer from
it. Mr. David Taylor, of Wind Ridge, Greene Co., Pa., is one of these. He uses Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and says he never found anything that would give him such quick relief. It is for sale by W. H. Emmons, Antioch, and Thomson's pharmacy, Grayslake.

The announcement that States Attorney Heydecker would not be a candidate for re-election, was considerable of a surprise to many of his Antioch friends who have a warm place in their affections for Mr. Heydecker and would have been pleased to see him succeed himself. The withdrawal of Mr. Heydecker practically leaves a clear field to Mr. Talcott who will doubtless be the next States Attorney of Lake county, and will fill the office with honor to himself and satisfaction to the people we doubt not, as he is in every way qualified for the position.
